ranklin Literary Society Celebration Alumni Address at Richmond Vollege-North Carolina Agricultural and Me

A special from Ashland, Va., last nigh The event of the year-Randolph

At exactly 12 o'clock the Society of Alumius was called to order by Dr. Siedd, and rayer was offered by Rev. S. Lambeth, f Richmond. The band then played "Nearr, my God, to Thee." Dr. Siedd gext made short address, excusing the absence of he president of the society. He called the sli of the ten young men who occupied that latform at the commencement of 1855 and aree of them answered to their names; one whom was the speaker, another was T. Gatch, and the other the orator of the sy, Major David R. Duncan, of South Carina, whom Dr. Siedd then introduced, afor Duncan madean eloquent address and soke with much feeling, bringing up many miniscenses of the old cellege days. He soke about an hour and fifteen minutes. r. Siedd then resigned the chair to Dr. nith, president of the college, who introduced in turn the seven contestants for the ators medal.

The speeches were limited to twenty min-utes each, and the contestants, with their subjects, were as follows:

S. W. Eason, Virginia, "Our Country's Greatness and Its Safeguards."

J. H. Riddick, Jr., Virginia, "The Power of the ideal in the Formation of Character."

J. D. Johnston, Jr., Virginia, "Education the Basis of Liberty."

W. B. Beauchamp, Virginia, "The Opportunity of To-Day."

The decisions of the judges will not be iven until to-merrow evening. The speak-ng continued until after 3 o'clock.

AT NIGHT.

Long before 8 o'ciock, people began to gather in the chapel to witness the celebration of the Franklin Literary Society, and by the appointed time the house was filled to overflowing. The intervals of waiting were filled with sweet music

Those taking part were: President, C. D. Ragland. Virginia; First Vice-President, W. B. Reauchamp, Virginia; Second Vice-President, E. P. Dalh, Virginia.

Marshals—Chief, S. S. Lambeth, Jr., Virginia; A. L. Moise, South Carolina; W. Stevens, Maryland.

Orators—W. A. Christian, Virginia. Subject: "A Nation's Safety. C. C. Caming-AT NIGHT.

ment of the institution of learning of which Richmond and the State are now proud was exceedingly interesting. He stated that he and a few others met on the 6th of June, 1830, in the Second Baptist church, of this city to consider the propriety of establishing a school for the instruction of young men who contemplated entering the Baptist ministry. The result of that conference was the establishment of the Virginia Baptist Seminary on the site now occupied by Richmond college.

The Doctor related some amusing experiences in connection with the early days of the institution. The students all boarded with the family of the president, and it was a custom to seek proficiency in orthography by passing words around the table to be spelled; and there were some practical examples of phonetic spelling. CHARTER APPLIED FOR.

CHARTER APPLIED FOR.

Gradually the institution grew, and at length the trustees applied to the General Assembly of Virginia for a charter; but the Legislature refused to grant a charter to a Theological Seminary, and so it was decided to make it only a classical school, and the name was changed to Richmond College. While the college has always been, and still is, owned and controlled by the Baptist denomination, it is not and has never been, in any sectarian scose, a Baptist college. Students of all croeds, and of no creed, have shared its advantages and borne off its honors; and even professors have been chosen regardless of denominational connections.

In 1849 the college for the first time conferred degrees. The full graduates were Rev. P. S. Henson, D. D., now of Chicago, and Josiah Ryland, Esq., a prominent business man and useful citizen of Richmond. The institution was growing rapidly when the war (bellum horrendum!) came on, scattered the students and faculty, destroyed the endowment, and defaced the buildings.

Soon after the close of the war the college started again on its career of usefulness with Dr. Ryland still at its head, and; for some years afterward it was under his charge. It was ever his aim to induce young men to gain the most thorough preparation possible for their life work. One giant is worth a hundred pigmies. His efforts in this direction were not always successful, yet the college, year after year, has sent out strong, well-equipped imen—men who have done and are doing their work grandly and well.

the friends of the College were delighted, the opportunity of looking upon the mercet and the genial face of the dear man who has done so much for the cause

Rev. H. A. Tupper, Jr., D. D., of Louis-file, Ky., was next introduced as the ora-or of the evening. Dr. Tupper is a young an of rare ability and exceedingly grace-ul as a speaker. He is the pastor of the broadway Baptist Church of Louisville, and is a son of Rev. Dr. H. A. Tupper of Resement.

ALUMNI SOCIETY.

Its Annual Meeting at Richmend College Chapel.

Last night the Society of Alumni held its annual meeting in the College chapel.

After prayer by Rev. J. R. Garlick, of Bruington, the president, Rev. R. R. Acree, of Petersburg, referred to the early history of the college, and introduced to the audience the venerable and beloved Rev. Dr. Robert Ryland, the first president of the college. Dr. Ryland was greeted with hearty applause, and his account of the origin and development of the institution of learning of which Richmond and the State are now proud was exceedingly interesting. He stated that he and a few others met on the 6th of June. 1830, in the Second Baptist church, of this city to consider the propriety of establishing a school for the instruction of young men who contemplated entering the Baptist ministry.

SILENT MEMORIALS.

These silent memorials of our great dead, each representing a thrilling epoch in our national life, are more cloquent than living longues. Let the voices from the living of Washington and Lée ever be an inspiration in the soul, and

"This above all to your own selves be true, And it will follow as the night the day You cannot then be false to any man.

"THE TRAMF'S STORY."

Perfect I. B. Humberlin of Sharrowert.

Professor L. R. Hamberlin, of Shreveport, La., who captured the audience on a similar occasion last year by his charming poem, "The Marble Heart," appeared again as the Alumni poet. The subject of his poem was "The Tramp's Story." Being encored, he entertained the audience delightfully by a humorous declamation, "How Ruby Played." TO-NIGHT.

The college honors will be announced to-night, and the closing exercises of the col-lege year will occupy the evening, begin-ning at 8:30. The presence of friends of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, took place this morning at that institution, in this city. Great interest was felt in the first commengement of this institution, and a large crowd was in attendance, including distinguished visitors from different parts of the State. Exercises were opened with essays of students. Essays were read by A. G. Smith, of Johnston county, and S. E. Asbury, of Burke county. Their subject was "The Work of Industrial Colleges." Short and appropriate addresses were then delivered by Hon. H. E. Fries, Hon. A. S. Merriman, Hon. S. A. Ashe, and Josephus Daniels. Esq. After the exercises the audience was invited into the mechanical department, where they were shown practical work of students in wood and iron. A new building for this department is now in progress, and will be completed by the opening of the fall term.

Shortly after 8 Mr. Excell sang, by request, the "Railroad Song," after which Dr. E. M. Peterson, of the Central Methodist Church, Manchester, offered a fervent prayer. Miss Grace Henning also sang a sweet solo, with chorus accompaniment.

Dr. Garland proposed a vote for all those in favor of Mr. Jones staying in Richmond to stand up. The vote was unanimous. Mr. Jones then made a statement. He said that some men were college-made, some were self-made, and some were made by God Almighty. "He made me, and I have not changed the job one bit. We people differ in a great many things, but we can never differ in regard to the truth; and I know the truth in these meetings has done a great deal of good. The sowing and reaping sermon was the one most kicked about; but, thank God, it did a great deal of good." VOTES TAKEN.

Mr. R. H. Whitlock arose at this point, and said that he could not endorse Mr. Jones in everything he had said while in Richmond. "If you had used less cayenne pepper," he continued, "and more solid shots, you would have succeeded better." Mr. Jones was somewhat surprised, but at once replied. At the conclusion of the sermen, Dr. Good-win offered a prayer, after which over fifty persons went to the platform and shool hands with Mr. Jones.

MR. STUART.

Mr. Stuart arose and said a few words. He stated the love and consideration shown him, while here, had made a deep impression on him, and that he would ever remember it with gratitude. "Remember me," he said, "in your prayers. I preach a plain gospel, and the sympathy and kind words you showed me to-day and have shown me at these meetings will ever be remembered by me as I press earnestly on. I do not try to imitate Brother Jones. He stands as the one man on this continent, and I ask your prayers that he may be successful in his work.

Dr. Garland asked that the congregation the "three men who have been conducting these meetings. Let a bountiful grace be upon them ere they leave this city, and that their work may be successful elsewhere." This was done, Rev. Mr. Atwill concluding the prayer.

Mr. Excell then arose and thanked the choir in appropriate words for their services, and asked the congregation, when in the future they sang his hymns, to breathe a little prayer that he might succeed in his work.

oreating a integrate prayer and ne might succeed in his work.

Mr. Jones then, with great feeling, thanked Mr. Brown and the ushers for their faithful services; the choir, the firm who had loaned the piano and organ, the preachers, and the newspapers.

The long-metre doxology was then sung, and many with tears in their eyes left the adifice. Among those that could be seen siently crying were women who have attended these meetings with zealous efforts, and y their presence alone contributed much to be success of them.

THE MORNING SERVICE.

Fully eight thousand people, half of whom were children, were in attendance at the children's service at the tabernacle yesterday morning. By ten o'clock all the best seats were taken, and the bright faces of the children could be seen on every turn. Among those who occupied seats on the platform were Rev. Dr. Goodwin, Rev. Jabez Hall, Rev. Messrs, Jackson, of Chesterfield; Edwards, of Manchester; Wertenbaker, Clopton and Pike Powers, Colonel A. Hogeland, Messrs, R. E. Michaels and Robert E. Richardson.

Mr. Atwill asked that special prayer be offered for many who were unable to be present at the meeting, and an impressive prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. A. B. Woodfin. Dr. Woodfin is the son of the late (corge Woodfin, at one time resident in this city. THE MORNING SERVICE.

George Woodfin, at one time resident in this city.

Mr. Jones then stated that Mr. Stuart would talk first, and the latter made a very interesting address to the children. He was listened to throughout by the young ones, and was much enjoyed. He said he was going to talk about the Bible. If he were to make a Bible for very little children he would only have three leaves in it. He would have them colored. There should be one page of black, red and white each. The black should represent sin, the red the blood of Christ, and the white a parified heart.

Jimmie Cook, the boy preacher, was next introduced by Mr. Jones, and this little voungster made a very pleasing talk. He showed throughout great familiarity with the Bible, and exhorted in excellent language for the 'boys and girls to give their hearts to God. I admonish you to remember the Creator in the days of your youth, and lead good lives."

Mr. Hogeland, "the newsbeys' friend," was the next speaker, and he made a very forcible talk to the children. He told of his various experiences in the large cities, and how little boys and girls could do good to their associates and friends.

MR. JONES' ADDRESS.

MR. JONES' ADDRESS.

Mr. Jones made a characteristic address to the children. He said, among other things, that his children had always taken a great interest in religion.

"Little Bob," he said, was five years old. He came in one day, and he (Mr. Jones) asked him where he had been. Bob said up to meeting. What did you do? Had my sins lorgiven. How do you know? Mr. Smith said all I had to do was to ask and my sins would be forgiven.

Well, what will you do if you go wrong

After the talk, at the invitation of Mr lones, over two hundred children came up o the platform and shook hands with Mr. lones, thereby intending to lead better lives.

AFTERNOON SERVICE. One of the, if not the largest attended atternoon services was the one held yesterday afternoon. Mr. Stuart preached from Proverbs: "Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is above rubies."

It was a sermon particularly to women, and great interest was manifested.

Stuart and Prof. Excell will leave for Sorfolk to-day. Rev. Mr. Jones will join them Sunday night.

One of the conveniences at the Tabernacle has been the ice water. It was perfectly free, and was a source of much comfort to the attendants.

The police also deserve great credit. With but one or two exceptions the order has been perfect, and a great deal was due to their effective discipline and presence. Mr. Jones was right when he said, they were gentlemen.

Dr. Themas Nelson Page expressed the views of our people in a recent number of The Times, on the accommodations of the city street railway (electric). How often it happens that we are obliged to drag our weary selves, on a hot day, all the way from First street, for instance—twenty-six blocks—on foot (!) that we may reach the dummy cars in time to take us home; as he says, a car may over take us just as we near our destination. These things ought not so to be.

Taking the School Census.

The State law requires the clerk of the City School Board to take the census of all school children between the ages of five and twenty-one every five years. Mr. C. P. Rady, clerk of the board, will commence the work to-day. Every family will be called on, and where the people understand that it is for the benefit of the public schools, they will give the information asked for cheerfully and promptly. The amount of money appropriated to the city schools by the State authorities for the ensuing five years is determined by this census.
